THE BOY SCOUT HIKE.

Every scout took a long hike out to Turkey Hill and back. There were no goblins up there. And they returned with an empty sack.

The boy scouts took with them a bunch of turkey legs and a happy bunch. They had dandy potatoes and coking meat.

No wonder they were happy with their great big eat.

Over the top the boy scouts flew. For they're always there when there's something to do. But the turkey they chased made his get away. And the scouts beat it back to Hull they say.

HULL INDEPENDENT ASSOCIATION

Whereas, God in His omnipotent wisdom has called to Himself the Reverend Andrew O'Brien, Professor at St. John's Seminary, and assistant priest in the parish of Hull; and

Whereas, Father O'Brien, no common type man, by his wise direction, his thorough scholarship, his saintly life, and his sterling character, commanded the reverence, affection, and esteem, not only of his co-religionists, but of all classes of citizens and residents of Hull, irrespective of religious ties; and

Whereas, this conservative and enlightened influence was always exerted for good in behalf of the town of Hull, which he loved so well; his high endeavor to help the poor, to console the sick and aged and the infirm; his abstemious and frugal life; and his wide and universal charity made him one of the most beloved men in the community; therefore be it

Resolved, that we, the members of the Independent Society of Hull, mindful of the charitable and lovable personality of the Reverend Andrew O'Brien, hereby express our admiration and appreciation of his unselfish life, his ever-outstretched hand to Charity, and his patient bearing with the suffering and afflicted; and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of this preamble and resolutions be suitably engrossed, duly authenticated, and inserted in our records, and sent to his bereaved parent.

O. E. S. ITEM

The regular business meeting of Dorothy Bradford Chapter No. 135 O. E. S. was held Monday evening Nov. 4th. At the second meeting, Nov. 8th, a bountiful harvest supper was served at 6:30 o'clock, with Sister Alida Whitton as chairman of the committee.

The tables were prettily decorated with Autumn leaves and yellow pumpkins, interspersed with small silk flags. At the close of the supper the members with a goodly number of guests adjourned to the Chapter room where the degrees were conferred upon a candidate in an impressive manner. A service flag with two stars was presented to the Chapter by the Worthy Patron Brother Elmer E. Bickford. Sister Marion W. Strangue, Assn. Matron, opened the day by reading a poem in a very pleasing way.

SOLDIER'S LETTER.

Headquarters 26th Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, November, 1918

Dear Mrs. Burr:

My conscience tells me that I ought to drop a line to good friends once in a while, aside from those times when I'm acknowledging something or asking for something else. The package of "East Winds" and magazines came this afternoon. They are more than welcome here and will be more so, if such a thing is possible, up in the trenches. I really feel almost out of the army here in headquarters, though I am in reality but a short distance from the front lines, and though I see some of the men from the company nearly every day. They always come in to see me when they have a few hours off, and I like to have reading matter and smoke to hand out. I have plenty of chance to get cigars—though I've never taken up smoking—and I usually manage to have a supply on hand. Next to letters from home, there's nothing they'd rather have than the local papers. Their gossip columns are almost as good as a whiff of the ocean breeze. I've seen the briny, and almost the same as sitting on past office fence, back at "The Corner," on Sunday morning and watching the world roll by.

Some of us who are fortunate—and incidentally disgraced—in holding the "bomb-proof" jobs rarely know when Sunday comes, and our nearest approach to the post office fence is to sit outside the door on a sunshiny morning and watch the various chase each other across the sky. Just lately Fritz has acquired a nasty habit of throwing shrapnel over periodically, and though we can figure out his schedule and dodge the shells pretty well, we keep our ears unless there's a plenty good reason for being out.

Before you get this you will have heard of Roger Borland's death. I have written his mother—I don't think I over met his wife. Was not very good, but he was so clean and straight and fine, so worth living, and there was so much need for him to come home again! I don't believe any man in the company had more of a good heart than he. The life in the trenches is worse than anything ever written about it—especially where an organization is so good it never gets a rest. The old outfit, held up and banded on by fellows like Roger, has been good, but it has never been given less than his best. You knew him well, and you knew what a splendid chap he was. He never changed in bit least over here, unless it was to work harder than he was before. A man who has stood what those boys have been through might be forgiven for any kind of lapse, but his life needs no forgiveness or apologies. He never slackened, and he never gave up. I couldn't stay to come back with the regiment and division he helped to make famous, but he left us gloriously. His people are the real sufferers, yet they must feel, as we do, that his life was very much worth while. I'm proud that I can say he was—and is—my friend.

The rest of the fellows from our locality are getting along pretty well. War has no terrors for them now—it has showed them everything it had, and they've come through weary, but unafraid, and covered with glory. I feel certain that the whole terrible thing is nearly over now, and that we'll soon be coming home again.

Thank you again for the papers. Please remember me to Chauncy. Sincerely, Jim.

TRIP TO ROCKLAND

Do I know that every Winter during the holiday season, the Hull East Wind Special makes several trips to Rockland, the live town. I am reminded of a classmate at the Bridgewater State Normal School who used to say "Oh, I am so alive! If I was any more alive it would be painful." Somehow that seems to fit Rockland. I presume, either I know that if my old classmates had known the word "pep" she would have used that. Let me say that the merchants of Rockland are alive, full of "pep" as evidenced by their association which has hit upon a scheme to continue the auto bus service from Scituate, started by our esteemed contemporary Mr. White of The Rockland Independent.

Mr. C. W. Purcell of the Hub store advocated that the merchants contribute a stipulated sum each week, toward running an auto bus from two points on the South Shore every Friday to Rockland to bring people from those places to the town to shop. The merchants have thereby made it possible for people in Scituate, Marshfield and Cohasset to get to and from Rockland at very small cost. It has worked well, and some credit is due Mr. Purcell. Heretofore the word "sum" has not meant very much, but in the sense now used and with the proper emphasis "sum" has a meaning which goes to the ninth power. Mr. Webster of the Front St. Garage, Scituate Harbor, starts his auto bus at 9 o'clock and "picks 'em up" along the road. Mr. Beal starts at the same time. Both autos leave Rockland at 1 o'clock on return trip. Mr. Purcell has been manager of the auto trips, and it has meant a good bit of work. In an interview which he granted the editor of the Hull East Wind, Scituate Sentinel, Marshfield Gazette, Cohasset Citizen, Hingham Herald, he stated that he has derived great satisfaction from the results and that more and more the merchants of the town see the benefits.

has caused to be printed some cards carrying the information, this store contributes to the South Shore auto fund, words to that effect, and these are used in the windows of said stores, but it is said in justice to Mr. Purcell and the other merchants contributing, that they have sent customers to the stores where merchants did not contribute. It would seem as if this broad mindedness of the part of contributors would impress the others. There is no need for the play "It Pays to Advertise" to go to Rockland, albeit it is a good show, for the merchants in the town value advertising of all kinds. Damon, the shoe man has used the Hull East Wind and a lot of papers for advertising for several years and many people from our district have found his store a good place to trade. If a visit is made to Rockland it will not be complete without a look-in at these stores. I am wearing a pair of galsters purchased at Damon's and am reminded of a story, because several of my friends have rather enviously said, "What a pretty pair of galsters." Now for the story, and the point is obvious. Patrick came home, and after discarding his working trousers, thrust his head out of the bedroom door after an unsuccessful search for his other pants and in a state of wilder said, "Bridget, where are the new spring pants?" Dramatically pointing to the windows of the sitting room, Bridget replied "Hush, Pat, be easy, sure, it's the envy of the neighbors that we are. Look at the elegant draperies, formerly yours." Now ladies don't envy me, you can get classy shoes, etc., at Damon's and Purcell's. I call attention to the advertisements of these stores which will appear from time to time in my papers. I find that Mr. Norcross is now conducting the business, formerly conducted by Mr. Beaudry and later by Norcross and Coburn. He has the usual full stock of suitable gifts for Christmas and has with him Mr. Poole. On Saturday evening when I visited the store they were very busy. Miss Kase at the Ladies Bazaar, the subtitle of which is Needlecraft, is always very pleasant; and has such a variety of so many dainty things which ladies need. I am reminded of something Emerson once said, "Where you meet the ideal merchant, trading becomes easy." "The ideal" as the business district is called, was to my childhood days a most wonderful place and it has never ceased to be an event in my life to visit it, and some of the ladies who go with me have often spoken of the good stores, the pleasant people, and the beautiful place. I hear the heart of the eternal "Amen."

"Music hath charms" and at Beal and Morphy's, one can rest while selecting one's record, or song, or violin. One is sure of cordial attention. Mr. T. House of the Boston store and his amiable and polite assistant, it is a pleasure to meet and they have "the goods." Make your holiday shopping a pleasure trip by trading in Rockland. Special auto trips will be made from Scituate and Cohasset know a good thing when they see it. Rockland is the natural shopping centre of the South Shore. The East Wind Special will make another trip on Saturday, Nov. 30th, seating capacity full. Anyone having an auto and friends invited to join. As the boys say, we will have "a whole of a time." A pleasant visit was had with Mr. White of the Rockland Independent and Mr. Alger is editor of the Rockland Standard. Mr. Alger is publisher of 13 papers and like Alexander of old is, we hear, looking for more worlds to conquer, no more papers to edit. Same thing. Sure! While eating lunch, I was fortunate to see myself beside Mr. Horace Fogz of the Rockland Trust Company and Mr. Harry Fogz, formerly of the South Scituate Savings Bank, who is now with the Hanover Rubber Company, if memory serves me no trick. Now I opine that these two gentlemen have found the "fountain of youth" for I'll take an affidavit that they look younger every year. I infer that they do not worry. I suppose that the financial interests they represent are on a solid basis, sure thing. I could not begin to tell all the pleasant and interesting things which happened on my trip to Rockland, the live town.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY
Mr. and Mrs. David R. Shaw were called to Milford to attend the funeral of Mrs. Shaw's brother, Mr. Chas. Wilkinson, on the day following Thanksgiving. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson have made their summer home at Strawberry Hill for several years. They had just come home from business on Wednesday at two o'clock and found his wife dead on the floor. Mrs. Wilkinson was loved and highly respected. She was an active worker in the M. E. Church in Milford where she was born and was also past matron of the Eastern Star.

May Raise Monkeys.
Los Angeles and southern California may become famous as a great monkey-raising section, if the hopes of animal fanciers come true. They believe that climate conditions there are favorable for the development of an industry that will make a specialty of raising monkeys, parrots and other wild pets that dealers now find it difficult to secure from their regular sources, because of war conditions.

NANTASKET SOCIAL CENTRE

The first meeting will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 3, and all both young and old are cordially invited to come and join in a social evening. Those in charge will plan special games on the outline of winter's work will be announced.

During the coming season the centre will be open but one night a week, (Tuesday) Mr. Harvey saving charge of the boys work and Mrs. Burr, the girls, having been appointed by the chairman to take full charge and settle all questions which may arise when she is not there.

If conditions will allow, a community meeting of some kind will be held at least once a month. I hope all who are remaining in town for the winter will come forward and help to make the meetings a success. Don't forget that although the school has been over the cost of the community work the labor is all volunteer and with many of the old workers compelled to leave town the burden will fall on one or two unless those remaining come forward and do their part.

DAMON SCHOOL P.T. ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Damon School P.T. Association which had been three times postponed for various reasons was held on Tuesday afternoon of this week with Mrs. Worthen, the president in the chair. The reports of the several committees were read and approved. As the Secretary, Mrs. Houston was not present, the secretary's annual report was not given. Mrs. Larry Coffey was elected secretary pro tem. The reports show much good accomplished and much enthusiasm for future work was shown. The same officers as last year were reelected and much the same committees. Mrs. Houston having resigned to take her place, Mrs. Coffey was elected to take her place. Mrs. E. Campbell spoke on several lines of work and Mr. Harvey suggested that all kinds of drives being held a Parent-Teacher drive was made in Scituate and plans were laid whereby every home having children in the school is to be visited and the parents invited to attend.

Last year the association numbered 93 paid members with a good average attendance. The association contributed to the Camp Welfare Work of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association which has bought a large house at 1314 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C., which will accommodate several hundred boys. It is proposed to put in 300 cots and to run a cafeteria. It is also proposed to provide good reading and game rooms and members of the National Congress will be ready constantly to supply the needs of the enlisted boys. A full list of officers and committees will be given next week by the press.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM KENTUCKY

Now that the greatest war in all history has been brought to a glorious close the question naturally arises as to what effect peace will have upon securities in general, and particularly what stocks will be favorably influenced by the rapidly changing conditions.

BOSTON KENTUCKY OIL COMPANY

with its immense acreage in Kentucky, comprising 1350 acres in Rowan County, leased and potentially productive territory presents

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR YOU

to acquire an interest in proportion to your investment which should return you handsome profits and in a Company where your interest carries what we believe to be a safe investment as well as possessing remarkable speculative possibilities. Regarding the oil situation after the war, it should be understood that there is at present

A DEPLETION OF 100.00 BARRELS OF OIL

per day and 3,000 barrels of gasoline per day, as oil and gasoline are being used in these amounts in excess of the present production and manufacturer. It is true that the oil and gasoline now utilized in war machines will not be required for such purposes after the close of the war, although there is the necessity for motor transports from France in bringing the armies supplies and equipment to points of shipment to home countries. Furthermore, the two years after peace is signed. The building of merchant ships, however, will not cease with the signing of peace. The present tonnage of merchant ships is less than it was in 1914. Where one ship is needed now

THREE WILL SOON BE NEEDED

to meet the needs of the world's commerce, in peace. Practically all of the new ships built since the beginning of the war are oil burning, and it is stated by the big, reliable business men engaged in the oil industry, that the requirements of the world's markets will mean the need of oil and its products in constantly increasing amounts. With reference to the developments in Kentucky, we are pleased to say that at the close of October, 580 wells were in process of drilling, as against 548 at the end of September. During the month of October, 218 new commercial oil wells and 14 new gas wells were successfully completed, making an additional daily average production of 5,653 barrels of crude petroleum. In order that you may take advantage of the present offer of BOSTON KENTUCKY OIL COMPANY treasury shares at FIFTEEN CENTS per share, it will be necessary that your order or reservation be sent us promptly, as this allotment is moving rapidly and the next allotment will be offered at TWENTY CENTS per share. Bear in mind that our acreage is unusually large and our capitalization unusually small. Address all communications to

"After-the-War" Dressing.
Discussion of the "after-the-war period" is becoming more general, some believing that it is too early to predict which effect victory will have on women and their mode of living. One couturier predicts that the most elaborate things will be made and women should wear them as an expression of victory. Banquets and receptions in honor of foreign visitors and our returning men will demand such clothes, and it is really up to the women to lead their heartaches as best they can and lift the spirit of the country. The English women have been doing this for some time; they have avoided mourning and are creating as gay a note as possible in London.—Women's Wear.

What Determines Meat and Live-Stock Prices?

Some stock men still think that Swift & Company—and other big packers—can pay as little for live-stock as they wish.

Some consumers are still led to believe that the packers can charge as much for dressed meat as they wish.

This is not true. These prices are fixed by a law of human nature as old as human nature itself—the law of supply and demand.

When more people want meat than there is meat to be had, the scramble along the line to get it for them sends prices up. When there is more meat than there are people who want it, the scramble all along the line to get rid of it within a few days, while it is still fresh, sends prices down.

When prices of meat go up, Swift & Company not only can pay the producer more, but has to pay him more, or some other packer will.

Similarly, when prices recede all down the line Swift & Company cannot continue to pay the producer the same prices as before, and still remain in the packing business.

All the packer can do is to keep the expense of turning stock into meat at a minimum, so that the consumer can get as much as possible for his money, and the producer as much as possible for his live-stock.

Thanks to its splendid plants, modern methods, branch houses, car routes, fleet of refrigerator cars, experience and organization, Swift & Company is able to pay for live cattle 90 per cent of what it receives for beef and by-products, and to cover expense of production and distribution, as well as its profit (a small fraction of a cent per pound), out of the other 10 per cent.

PROVEN SWAMP-ROOT AIDS WEAK KIDNEYS

The symptoms of kidney and bladder troubles are often very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition. The kidneys seem to suffer most, as almost every violent complaint of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more dangerous kidney troubles.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which, so many people say, soon heals and strengthens the kidneys, is a splendid kidney, liver and bladder medicine, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who use it.

A trial will convince anyone who may be in need of it. Better get a bottle from your nearest drug store, and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

ORCHARD CLEANINGS

SOIL PREPARED FOR APPLES

Turn as Deeply as Possible With Two-Horse Turner and Follow With Subsoiler.

(By C. F. NIVEN, Clemson Agricultural College.)

Before planting the young apple trees the soil should be well prepared by turning as deep as possible with a two-horse turner. Follow this with a subsoiler. Immediately after the soil has been turned it should be thoroughly harrowed, which can best be done by double cutting with a curbway harrow. Failure to prepare the soil well greatly reduces the future value of the tree. It is a serious mistake simply to dig a small hole in hard soil, place the tree in it and leave it standing. The roots cannot penetrate his hard soil. The young tree cannot receive the proper nourishment. The result is that a very weak tree is produced and in many instances such trees fail to live more than a year or two. Under such conditions the farmer is sure to meet with discouragement. One of the great secrets of success is to prepare thoroughly to begin with.

LOSSES IN LOADING GRAPES

Containers Should Be Strong and Packed End to End—Climax Baskets Recommended.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Extensive investigations conducted by the United States department of agriculture show that the crushing of grapes in a car in transit is governed by the type and strength of the package, the manner and care used in loading, the height of the load, the construction of the car and the handling it receives from the railroad. Twelve-quart Climax baskets and trays are recommended because they properly protect the fruit; they are not too costly; they are suitable, attractive and available for most markets.

When Climax baskets are used for loading grapes they should be well made, of good wood, with center cut 17 to the inch as a maximum thickness for the 12-quart size, and 20 to the inch for 4 and 2-quart sizes. Wooden handles permit a firmer load than wire handles as they strengthen the baskets and serve as braces in the load.

Experience demonstrates that the best results occur when Climax baskets of 12-quart size are loaded 17 1/2 high, the 4-quart size 12 high, and the 2-quart size 15 high. All other packages should be loaded to the height of not less than 48 inches or more than 60 inches from the bottom of the first layer.

Bushel baskets, hampers and miscellaneous boxes are not satisfactory packages for grapes as they cannot be loaded safely with economy. All types of grape packages carry best when loaded according to the "straight system," that is, with all packages end to end, extending from one ice bunker to the other. In every other layer of Climax baskets, it is necessary to load

those that touch the bulkhead crosswise in the car in order to fill in the otherwise vacant spaces, but this should not be permitted anywhere else in the load. All stock should be taken out as the baskets are being loaded, using racks to fill out at the end of the car when there is surplus space. Every fraction of an inch of surplus space from side to side of the car should be tightly filled in by loading the last row diagonally.

SPRAY FOR SAN JOSE SCALE

Work May Be Done Any Time After Leaves Fall—Fairly Warm Day Is Preferable.

Spraying for San Jose scale may be done at any time after the leaves fall, but preferably on a fairly warm day. Generally speaking spraying just before the buds open in the spring is more effective than fall spraying. In badly infested orchards the best results are secured by spraying in the fall with an oil spray, followed by an application of lime-sulphur in the spring.

IMMORTAL SPIRIT OF FRANCE

Woman's True Type of Gallie Character That Brute Force of Huns Could Never Crush.

A tired and dusty doughboy drew up in front of a shell-battered house in Chateau Thierry and asked a Frenchwoman if he could get a drink of water.

"Oul, mon garcon," said the woman. "You come right along with me."

After the soldiers had obtained his drink and was about to depart, he remarked that her house had suffered more or less from the guns.

"Yes," was the reply, "I used it as a dressing station for the Americans who were wounded here and the Boches seemed to know about it. But it's all right. We will build it up again and everything will be the same."

She explained in detail just how she would rearrange the architecture, how the windows would be built larger.

"We will have to carry a lot of rock," she smiled. "You see, those are all shot to pieces. But it's not far to the river."

Then she turned and resumed her task of clearing away the debris that had once been the best wall of her house.—From the Stars and Stripes, Official Publication of the American Expeditionary Forces.

HOW A SOLDIER FEELS IN FIGHT

Anniston, Ala.—Here is the description of a big battle as it impressed itself upon the mind of Sergt. Lawrence Hopkins of Oxford:

"They're off!" It seems a thrill through you as you hear their cry and rise up and find yourself in a crowd of men; pausing a moment to light our pipes or cigarettes and we are hurrying forward with glistering steel in our hands to meet the foe.

"If it were not for these other men moving along heavily laden to keep pace with the barrage one might well stand in amazement at a wilderness suddenly become crowded with swaying humanity, bravely attempting to weather the furious storm.

"The big guns roll like heavy thunder, the little field batteries answer with a bark, shells scream, whistle, bowl, according to their moods.

Death is Everywhere.

"The quick siccato coughing of machine guns goes on unceasingly all around you and is swallowed up in its echoes. There is a spatter of rifle bullets as they whiz by you and you wonder that you are untouched. Barbed wire tears our clothes to pieces; mud sticks them together again. Birds fly at our feet and from the sky winged airplanes swoop down. Spitfire tanks plod on behind, crashing and crushing; burning, boiling oil sends flames leaping to the clouds; molten phosphorus is poured into ditches. There is gas to blind and choke you.

"There are laughs and cries; the laugh of a comrade as he struggles on, or the cry of another as he drops his rifle and puts his hand to his heart—his last cry. There is the yell of the hunter, the wild-crying despair of the hunted. The plunk of the mortars and the burst of the bombs add to the tumult of the storm.

"Stretcher bearers rush to and fro, running zig-zag across the battlefield with their messages. Then I drop into a shell hole, the cold sweat running off my face, and breathe. Take my compass out, get direction adjusted and when the barrage lifts I dive into the trench again—and so on. Germans are scarce; they are down below. 'Moppers up' behind will deal with them. Over broken trenches and torn ground, slipping, falling, sprawling, I go for our objective. As the curtain of fire and smoke passes over the village we make the final spurt forward and—dig like hell!

Germans Fear Americans.

"The noise increases, the guns get more angry, shells and showers of mud and dirt are falling all around you. The devil seems to be raining out his furnace, the sky seems to crash down on you, then my head swims, my arms fall to my sides, my legs grow limp and I drop down as I hardly know my gas mask. And when I open my eyes and find myself I am on a stretcher and someone with a smile all over his bronzed face offers me a cigarette.

"Yes, we ran the Huns for six days and five nights, and I did not want to eat or sleep. I tell you it was grand, and if I hadn't been gassed I feel like I could still be running them. We started in on the 24th day of July, my birthday, and, mother, dear, I took no prisoners.

"A German officer said to his men: 'Why do you run; is not Gott mit you?' And the German soldiers answered: 'Yes, but the Americans are mit the French.'

INVESTS IN BONDS AND STAMPS

Duluth, Ga.—Left $10,000 inheritance by her son, Anous Hardin, who died in a wound received in action in France, Mrs. Mary E. Hardin turned the entire amount into Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps. Mrs. Hardin says she takes this method in helping the government and to avenge her son. Her husband, Eli J. Hardin, gave his life in order to save a fellow workman endangered from noxious gases in a well. For this act Mrs. Hardin received a Carnegie hero medal and a pension.

YANKS IN WRECKED VILLAGE

A detachment of Americans are here shown on their way through the French town of Buquoy, which has suffered some very heavy bombardment. This French official photograph shows the ruins of the village and the American troops passing through Thiers de Camis, on their way to do their share in the heavy fighting which the Yanks did in this sector.

High Cost of Moving.

Savannah, Ga.—The high cost of moving in Savannah has obliterated the old saw that "it is cheaper to move than pay rent." It now costs from $10 to $20 per load to move, because of the extreme scarcity of labor and the high cost of upkeep.

SQUIRT GUN WAS ONE HUN TRICK

London.—First Lieut. Ira J. Hodges of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Berkeley, Cal., praises Lieut. Audrey Grey of Berkeley as one of the gamest American officers he ever knew.

Lieutenant Grey, fearfully wounded and at the point of death, said: "Don't take me, boys; clean 'em out first."

By "cleaning 'em out," he meant for them to keep on driving at the German machine gun nests until they were abandoned. He did not want to interrupt the progress on that part of the line for an instant.

Lieutenant Hodges was wounded in the left leg—the same leg in which he had been shot during the Spanish-American war.

"I was just out of the hospital," he said, telling of his last engagement. "I had been laid up with whooping cough. I had just reported back and been assigned to command of Company —. We were ordered to advance first on Saturday, August 31. We went ahead for two and a half miles and took the German second line trench.

"Grey Gets Fatal Wound. "The counter-attack came exactly at four o'clock. But, of course, it availed nothing, because we were fully able to meet it with more than sufficient resistance. Our artillery had full sweep of the ground over which they moved. The slaughter was terrible.

"We lay in the position all that night, and at seven o'clock in the morning made a quick move. We took over a line of shell holes about three hundred yards in front of us. Then we started in to clean up the thick nests of machine guns.

"Lieutenant Grey was shot in the stomach and Lieut. Harry Blair of Brooklyn was hit. Then I was hit. After I got it Blair and myself carried Grey back to a dressing station. He died the next morning.

Huns Did Not Fight Fair.

"The Germans were fighting in a nasty way. It was not the least bit safe to pay any attention to them as they began to cry 'damned.' Many of them carried a little pistol called a 'squirty gun.' It shoots a small bullet like a twenty-two, but sprays them out at short range. The pistols keep on shooting just as long as you keep your finger pressed on the trigger. They are good for short range only. The danger was in this: If you rounded up two or three or more Germans and ordered them to throw up their hands, they would, except that one of them would be a little slow. If you started to lower your gun or pistol to take them in tow the slow-moving man suddenly threw out his squirty gun and opened fire. The safest thing to do was to take no chances.

"The Germans were doing all sorts of things that were forbidden by international code. They did not think anything of firing on the stretcher bearers, although the men were carefully marked with white bands on their arms and were classed as non-combatants."

HARD DOLLARS WORRY GOTHAM OLD-TIMERS

New York.—For the first time in approximately fifty years the good old American silver dollar has again made its appearance on Broadway. Many "old-timers" finger them gingerly, like a hilt, shake their heads and mutter "phony." Nevertheless, the dollars are good ones. They are arriving in the pockets of France-bound soldiers from the Middle and Western states, and, well, the majority of them will not be spent in France.

Changes German Name.

Allants, Ga.—John von Hladin, an American with a German name, testified before the federal court that he could stand the reflection no longer. His name is now John F. Vaughn. Vaughn declares he has not a drop of German blood in his veins.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISON FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to wear a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirit so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. It is particularly true with elderly people. If you only knew how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 300 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "thick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidney. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidney.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malady which can be warded off or cured if taken in time.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. Accept No Substitutes.—Adv.

Money Burns Their Pocket

Paris.—No wonder that American soldiers around the French with their money-burning proclivity. Shops stocked efficiently in the ordinary course of events to last six months are frequently cleaned out in a day when the Yankees arrive. The Americans just simply buy everything in sight.

A bunch of troops just arriving from the long journey overseas, or perhaps having been shunted around a month or so after landing, reach a perfume shop and are paid off. Frequently they haven't had a pay day in two or three months.

Then with their pockets full of the strange francs they go to town and make up for lost time. They overlook nothing from a Swiss watch to an armful of novelties to send back home.

But with all the spending and buying it is remarkable that there are so few cases of drunkenness. The wine shops are open to the Americans at certain hours, generally from 5:30 to 8:30 p. m. But the average American does not like French wine, at least not at first. French beer has a flat, weak taste which does not appeal at all to Americans. There is no whiskey, and even were it available the Americans would not be allowed to purchase it. Cognac is the nearest approach to whiskey and this must be obtained by stealth—sort of a boot-legging process.

Many thousands of American soldiers, disgusted with the light wines and beers which only they may procure, have forsaken home entirely, gone on the "water wagon" for keeps and will be in good trim for the nation-wide prohibition they will face when they return to the United States.

The vastness of the London stock exchange, under peace conditions, requires the services of 25,000 persons every day.

STEADIER HOG MARKETS PLANNED

Hog Producers and Packers Confer With Representatives of the Food Administration and Agricultural Department and Adopt
New Plan of Regulation.

In accordance with the policy of the Food Administration since its foundation to consult representative men in the agricultural industry on occasions of importance to special branches of the industry, on October 24 there was convened in Washington a meeting of the Live Stock Subcommittee of the Agricultural Advisory Board and the special members representing the swine industry to consider the situation in the hog market.

The conference lasted for three days, and during this time met with the executive committee of the fifty packing firms participating in foreign orders for pork products and with the members of the Food Administration directing foreign pork purchases.

The conclusions of the conference were as follows:

The entire marketing situation has so changed since the September joint conference as to necessitate an entire alteration in the plans of price stabilization. The current price talk has alarmed the holders of corn, and there has been a price decline of from 25 cents to 40 cents per bushel. The fact that the accumulations of low priced corn in the Argentine and South Africa would, upon the advent of peace and liberated shipping, become available to the European market has created a great deal of apprehension on the part of corn holders. This decline has spread fear among swine growers that a similar reduction in the prices of hogs would naturally follow. Moreover, the lower range of corn prices would, if incorporated in a 13-to-1 ratio, obviously result in a continuously falling price for live hogs. In view of these changed conditions many swine producers anticipated lower prices and as a result rushed their hogs to market in large numbers, and this oversupply has added to and aggravated the decline.

The information of the Department of Agriculture indicates that the supply of hogs has increased about 8 per cent, while the highest official estimate does not exceed 15 per cent increased production over last year. On the other hand, the arrival of hogs during the last three weeks in the seven great markets has been 27 per cent more than last year, during the corresponding period, demonstrating the unusually heavy marketing of the available supply. In the face of the excessive receipts some packers have not maintained the price agreed last month. On the other hand, many of the packers have paid over the price, while others have endeavored to maintain the agreed price. The result in any event has been a failure to maintain the October price basis determined upon at the September conference and undertaken by the packers. Another factor contributing to the break in price during the present month has been the influenza epidemic.
It has sharply curtailed consumption of pork products and temporarily decreased the labor staff of the packers about 25 per cent.

The exports of 130,000,000 pounds of pork products for October compared with about 124,000,000 pounds in October a year ago, and the export orders placeable by the Food Administration for November, amount to 170,000,000 pounds as contrasted with the lesser exports of 98,000,000 for November, 1917. The increased demands for the winter are continuing, and are in themselves proof of the necessity for the large production for which the Food Administration asked. The increase in export demands appears to be amply sufficient to take up the increase in hog production, but unless the present conditions existing in October afford no fair index of the aggregate supply and demand.

It must be evident that the enormous shortage in fats in the Central Empires and neutral countries would immediately upon peace result in advanced prices for pork products, which, on top of the heavy shipments to the Allies, would tend materially to increase the American exports. Inasmuch as no considerable reservoir of supplies exists outside of the United States. It seems probable that the present prospective supplies would be inadequate to meet this world demand with the return to peace. So far as it is possible to interpret this fact, it appears that there should be even a stronger demand for pork products after the war and therefore any alarm of hog producers as to the effect of peace is unwarranted by the outlook.

In the light of these circumstances it is the conclusion of the conference that attempts to hold the price of hogs to the price of corn may work out to the disadvantage of pork producers.
It is the conclusion that any interpretation of the formula should be a broad gauged policy applied over a long period. It is the opinion of the conference that in substitution of the previous plans of stabilization the Live Stock Subcommittee of the Agricultural Advisory Board, together with the specially invited swine representatives, should accept the invitation of the Food Administration to join with the Administration and the packers in determining the prices at which controlled export orders are to be placed.
This will be regularly done. The influence of these orders will be directed to the maintenance of the common object—namely, the stabilization of the price of live hogs so as to secure as far as it is possible fair returns to the

Live Stock Subcommittee of the Agricultural Advisory Board, together with special swine producers and the representatives of the packers, to improve the present unsatisfactory situation, which has unfortunately resulted because of the injection of uncontrollable factors.

We ask the producer to co-operate with us in a most difficult task.

We agree that a committee shall be appointed by the Food Administration to observe the daily operations in the various markets with a view to supervision and demonstration of the carrying out of the above.

The ability of the packers to carry out this arrangement will depend on there being a normal marketing of hogs based upon the proportionate increase over last year. The Food Administration will endeavor to maintain the increase in production agreed upon.
The increase in production agreed upon is a maximum of about 15 per cent, and we can handle such an increase.

If the producers of hogs should, as they have in the past few weeks, prematurely market hogs in such increasing numbers over and above the agreement, it is the opinion of the packers that they will be unable to maintain these results. It is a physical impossibility for the capacity of the packing houses to handle a minimum overload of hogs and to find a market for the output. The packers are anxious to co-operate with the producers in maintaining a stabilization of price and to see that producers receive a fair price for their products.

(Signed) THOS. E. WILSON,
Chairman Packers' Committee.

The plan embodied above was adopted by the conference.

The Food Administration has appointed a committee, comprising Mr. Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the "Packers' Committee; Mr. Everett Brown, president of the Chicago Livestock Exchange; Major Roy of the Food Administration, Mr. Louis D. Hall of the Bureau of Markets, to undertake the supervision of the execution of the plan in the various markets. Commission men are asked to co-operate in carrying out the plan embodied in the packers' agreement. It must be evident that offers by commission men to sell hogs below the minimum established above is not fair, either to the producer or the consumer. The packers Mr. Brown has undertaken on behalf of the commission men in the United States that they will loyally support the plan.

It is believed by the conference that this new plan, based as it is upon a positive minimum basis, will bring better results to the producer than average prices for the month. It does not limit top prices and should narrow the margins necessary to country buyers in more variable markets. It is believed that the plan should work out close to $15 average.

Swine producers of the country will contribute to their own interest by not flooding the market, for it must be evident that if an excessive over percentage of hogs is marketed in any one month price stabilization and control cannot succeed, and it is certain that producers themselves can contribute materially to the efforts of the conferences if they will do their marketing in as normal a way as possible.

The whole situation as existing at present demands a frank and explicit assurance from the conferees represented—namely, that every possible effort will be made to maintain a live hog price commensurate with swine production costs and a reasonable adjusting values in execution of the declared policy of the Food Administration to use every agency in its control to secure justice to the farmer.

The stabilization methods adopted on November 1st represent the best efforts of the conference, concurred in by the Food Administration and the

From the Jungle Fowl Are Descended the Feathered Creatures of the Barnyard of Today.

Although there were no houses within half a mile of the camp, we were surprised on our first night to hear cocks crowing in the jungle (Yunnan province, tropical China), Roy Chapman Andrews writes in Harper's Magazine. The note was like that of the ordinary barnyard fowl, except that it ended somewhat more abruptly. The next morning we discovered Chantrel-ler and all his harem in a deserted rice field, and he flew toward the jungle in a flash of red and gold.

I dropped him and one of his hens with a right and left of "slices" and found that they were jungle fowl (Gallus gallus) in full plumage. The cock was a splendid bird. The long neck feathers (hackles) spread over his back and wings like a shimmering golden mantle but were hardly more beautiful than the black of his under parts and the gleam of his tail. I gave to yourself a "black-breasted red game cock," and you will have him in all his glory except that his tail is drooping and he is more pheasantlike in his general bearing. The female was a trim little bird, with a lilac sheen to her brown feathers, and looked exactly like a well-kept "game bantam" hen.

The jungle fowl is the direct ancestor of our barnyard hens and roosters, which were probably first domesticated
in Burma and adjacent countries long before the dawn of authentic history. According to tradition, the Chinese received their poultry from the West about 1400 B. C., and they are figured in Babylon cylinders between the sixth and seventh centuries
B. C. Although they were probably brought to Greece through Persia, there is no direct evidence as to how
and when they reached Europe.

BEUL FOR SHALLOW WATER
Peculiar Marine Institution on New England Coast Was Known In 1842 as the Camel.

In the year 1842 a queer marine institution made its appearance in Nantasket and bore the name of camel.
These camels were really huge floating dry docks for carrying ships over the bar, where the depth of water had been usually decreasing since 1820.
Being flat-bottomed the camels could float in water very much shallower than a loaded ship required. They were like two long, large boxes floating side by side and held together at the ends by large iron chains.

The outer sides were almost straight up and down, but the inner sides were curved, making when the two sections were drawn together, an interior basin just the shape of the bottom of a ship.

The plan was for the camels to be separated enough to allow the ships to be hauled into the basin between the two sections, then to be drawn and held fastened together by the chains, holding the ship between them, so that the camels and the ship could then be towed over the shallow places in the channel to the wharf.

And, Paild-ones.

When asked by a friend if he had any coal, Rogers gave a reply that is the same spelled backwards or forwards: "Not a ton, Bob, not a ton."

Unknown Human Qualities.

Fortune, good or ill, as I take it, does not change men and women. It but develops their characters. As there are a thousand thoughts lying within a man that he does not know till he takes up the pen to write, so the heart is a secret to him (or her) who has it in his own breast.—Thackeray.

Slippers.

In many respects orientals can give us lessons in hygiene. It is true they eat out of a common bowl with their fingers, which is neither sanitary nor pleasant; but on the other hand they do not tramp into a house, bearing on their footwear all the miscellaneous filth of the street. At the door they remove their shoes and put on slippers.—Exchange.

OBITUARIES.

Mrs. A. E. Banks of Back Bay, Boston, mother of Mrs. Merton Cleverly of Hull, was buried on Monday of this week, having died very suddenly on Friday of the previous week from heart failure. Rev. Frank Kingston at Mrs.
Cleverly's request conducted the service,
and those who attended were consoled
and comforted by his inspiring words.
Mrs. Cleverly was too ill to attend the funeral. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and included especially beautiful pieces from the Brotherhood of Railroad Men and from the Station Agents. Mr. Banks has long been a railroad man.

Miss Isadora Vogel's obituary that was to have been sent in by a very dear friend, has failed to reach the office, and has probably been lost in the mail. Up to the time of going to press, we have waited, but it failed to appear. No one who has gone from our midst has been more keenly missed, or more sincerely mourned than Mrs. Vogel, and all hearts go out in sympathy to her loving son Frederick and her father, Mr. Francis Cleverly, whose home has been broken up by her untimely death.

The Universalist Society held a "Peace Supper" at their Parish House last Thursday night.

Mr. Henry Hersey of South street left Hingham to spend Thanksgiving with his sisters in Boston.

Mrs. Orianna J. Botting is spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Studley of Greenbush.

The Universalist Society are to hold a play at their Parish Tuesday eve
next, "My Brother's Keeper."

Mrs. William Hennessey is visiting her son who is at present in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. John Borland have the sympathy of the community at the news of the death of their son, Roger,
who was in France.

The First Parish held a Harvest Service last Sunday under the direction of Charles H. Johnson, Supt. of the Sunday School.

A special meeting of the Friendship
Club was held at the home of Mrs. J.
L. Gould, South Hingham. Miss Addie
Richards acted as hostess, a collation was served. Reports from the committees were read, readings, war songs, and instrumental music concluded the even-

her legion of friends will come to North Cohasset to help her and our church, who have gladly responded to calls for help in the last four years,
from other sources, under whatever name.

"Peace," was spoken Monday, Nov. 11.
How the glad news thrilled our hearts.

As we heard it and we said, "our dear boys will be home for Christmas, perhaps for Thanksgiving. As we rejoiced also came a sad thought how hard it will be in some homes, as they know that there will be no home-coming for their loved ones who are laid away in the "evergreen shore," but whose freed souls are waiting on the "evergreen shore" to meet us, when we "go home" to them.

One of our boys, who went forth, brave and cheerful with Co. K, from Hingham, has "passed over the river" to join the large number of brave boys who fought for freedom. Roger Borland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Borland of Weir street, laid down his life,
"ever there," October 23. A war telegram came to his parents and young wife, November 23, while they were preparing a box for Christmas, with the things he wished for. Our hearts ache for his family, mother, father, wife and brothers, as we mourn for him, as one of "our boys." A boy of whom never one word of censure was spoken by any one, he was genuine goodness, in word and deed, all his short life in whatever position he filled.

Our pastor's wife, Mrs. Schaubauer, returned home on Sunday from the Commonwealth hospital, Boston, where she has been for a serious operation, appendicitis. Mrs. Schaubauer is a lovable woman, active in all good work, and is beloved by all her parishioners. We wholely welcome her home.

Mr. A. L. Richardson passed his 80th birthday on November 18, at his daughter's present home, Mrs' D. O. Wade, 121 Nantasket avenue, Nantasket. Mr.
Richardson received a number of remembrance cards from friends and enjoyed a bountiful birthday dinner, with his wife, his two daughters, Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Ames White, also Mr. White and Paul David Wade, who is Mr. Richardson's great grandson Mr. Richardson is said to be 80 years young, as he does his day's work on Cohasset's streets, or roads, as he calls them, and needs no high authority to tell him his work is done well, but Highway Superintendent George Jason often says, "Al, I don't see how you do it; it is fine."

Manliness and Art.
Art is a manly business, if every man human occupation could be called manly, for the utmost efforts of the strongest men are needed for success
in it.—P. G. Hamerton.

Turtle's Instinct.
It has long ago been ascertained that the eggs of the loggerhead turtle are laid in the sand at some distance from the sea. As soon as the young are hatched, however, they move with unerring instinct to the water. It is found that newly hatched loggerhead turtles move away from red, orange and green, but are attracted by blue.
Under normal conditions, then, the blue gleam of the sea may be supposed to attract them, while they will move away from the reds and greens of the land.

Gets Along Without Nest.
The whippoorwill doesn't build a nest. It lays two large, round eggs in a slight depression in the ground—say in a cow's track in the pasture, or even upon the top of a dead and rotting log in the woods. If the eggs are discovered the bird will carry them away in its mouth and deposit them somewhere else, and it will do the same thing with its young.

Telltale Count.
"I know I was not drunk," said a woman charged at Brentford. "I counted 13 buttons on the policeman's tunic." As the constable was wearing in court the identical garment, which had eight buttons, she was fined.— Hull's News, London.

Proofs of Wisdom.
The first characteristic of a good and wise man at his work is to know that he knows very little; to perceive that there are many above him wiser than he; and to be always asking questions, wanting to learn, not to teach.—Ruskin.

Homing Instinct Supreme.
Science cannot explain the wonderful instinct which brings the pigeon to its home, but it is stronger than fear or any other obstacle. Liberated in the face of the heaviest barrage, it circles in the air to get its bearings, rises swiftly to a height of half a mile, then is off with the speed of a bullet. For a distance of 80 miles they are capable of making two miles a minute, and have flown 800 miles on a single flight.

Not Scared by Cry of "Fad."
The wise man—the man who thinks —is not afraid of anything, new or old, because it may seemingly be referred to as a "fad." He examines 'it to see if it is a good fad or a bad fad
and accepts or rejects it accordingly.

To Battle Gypsy Moth

Human efforts to exterminate the gypsy moth have failed and the United States government is now importing insect parasites of this pest to aid in the war of extermination. In order to destroy the injurious moth the government is going to provide a home and encourage the development of an insect that makes a specialty of fighting the moth.

The Whippoorwill.
The favorite hunting ground of the whippoorwill is about the edges of a forest, or over the tops of the trees, where the big, fat moths are to be found at night. It makes no noise as it flies, because its feathers are soft and fluffy, but as it darts past you sometimes it utters a sort of groan.
The whippoorwill occasionally gives vent to a loud "yawk" as it flies through the evening air.

Beauty and Service.
A real woman can make a home in a desert out of a dry goods box or in a cathedral in France. But do not think that she does it by the wave of a magic wand. She does it because she gives her heart and hands and head to it;
because she loves early and works late;
because she loves beauty as she does her own life, and because she realizes that service is its handmaid.—New York Evening Mail.

Daily Thought.
Goodness is the only investment that never fails.—Henry David Thoreau.

What One Is.
"Say, Pa, just one more," pleaded the animated question mark. "What is the 'Rock of Ages'?" "The way it seems to a young father trying to race with a spell of colic."

There Are Just a Few Who Make Collections Costly

MOST TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS pay their bills promptly and the labor expended in collecting the majority of telephone accounts is, therefore, reason-able.

BUT THERE ARE A NUMBER of subscribers who overlook their telephone bills, who neglect to pay them within the reasonable specified time, and the labor of collecting these accounts is —probably two or three times as great as that involved in collecting all the accounts that are paid within the desired period.

THE LABOR involved in collecting overdue accounts would be saved if all accounts were paid within a reasonable time, and, under present war-time conditions, might better be devoted to other work of value to the community's telephone service.

Coats for Zero Weather

Among the handsome midwinter coats made ready for fast-approaching zero weather, there are a greater number of garments that combine furs with fur fabrics than in any former displays. Although all plushes are not fur-fabrics, all fur-fabrics are plushes. Fur-fabrics designate those plushes that have colorings and markings in imitation of the skins of fur-bearing animals and they were at first manufactured as a substitute for furs, and from the standpoint of being less expensive.

Such progress has been made in the beauty and quality of these rich fabrics that they are now considered more elegant than the cheaper furs, and as desirable to use in combination with high-class skins. Some of them, as the seal-broadtail, caracul and beaver plushes, are such close imitations of the original skins that it is hard to distinguish between them, except at close quarters.

A great step in advance has been made in the usefulness of these fabrics since fashion has placed them on par with skins in coats where the two are combined. A very successful combination of this kind appears in the coat pictured above, which has a body of caracul plush, very long waist, and a skirt of natural muskrat. The wide collar and band cuffs are of the fur. Honors are even in this stunning garment between the fur and the fabric.

The other coat is of seal plush with wide shawl collar and deep cuffs of taupe lynx, and is as reliable for comfort and good appearance as a fur coat. If there is any difference in the matter of durability, it is in favor of the plush. These coats are interlined and as warm as toast. They are not the only garments featured this season, made of furs and fabrics combined that have proved a success. There are short coats and coats, scarfs and capes as well, and occasionally a consultant that compel a divining attention; the last a premonition of something new in suits which winter may see well developed.

Closing Chapter of Winter Millinery

The last chapter in the story of winter millinery is presented and the tale concludes with all-fur hats or hats that are made of fur in combination with other things. Although shorter than the story of velvet or other fabric hats, it is not so very brief as one might suppose. The ingenuity of designers lengthens it. But after fur hats have been disposed of, one may write "finis"—winter is over, so far as new things in winter hats are concerned. In January millinery begins to be springlike; "between seasons" and "early spring" are the inspiration of millinery designers, who must then be occupied with the demands of southern tourists.

But only a few people journey South, and those who remain in the lands of snow face two or three months of midwinter weather—hence a variety of fur hats is needed. They are here in many shapes and combinations. Turbans and small shapes predominate among them, but there are large shapes with crowns of fur and brims of velvet, or lace or malles often with emplacements of fur on them. In the smaller hats and turbans, feather crowns with fur brims and feather coronets on turbans with fur crowns are new and beautiful ideas.

Besides feathers, furs are used in combination with long-napped beaver cloth, satin and velvet in smaller hats for covering shapes. In the larger hats fur is confined usually to the crown, but in some wide-brimmed picturesque models, in which dull silver and gold laces, or other transparent materials are used for the brim coverings, narrow borders or fringes, in fur like that on the crown, edge the brims. Many turbans and small hats have crowns covered with rows of ribbon—in scant ruffles and brims covered with fur.

In the group of fur hats pictured the tall Cossack turban is especially smart. A round hat presents a combination of two furs—moleskin on the crown and sealskin brim. The sealskin skating cap is the regulation and always fashionable type that appears each winter, this year with a fur button on the top. So large a proportion of suits and coats are fur trimmed, and fur neckpieces and garments so universally worn that a vogue for fur hats to match was a logical conclusion. It has arrived.

Julius Bottomly

Beaver for Fall Hats.

However, our old friend in millinery, is again used extensively for fall hats. It is most often used for a crown with a brim of stitched felt, or for a brim with a crown of satin.

"LOOK OUT
FOR THE CARS"

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant,
"Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that it's all—your surety can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine—Adv.

PISO'S

Rationed

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nan was the only studio in the old building down in Chelsea that possessed a balcony. And perhaps Nan was the only American among the tenants, all of whom earned their daily rations by means of one of the arts. Nan Moore herself was a writer and sent back stories to America and conducted a column on how to prepare food in war times. Nan's small typewriter clicked at almost any hour of the day or night.

For a few weeks past Nan's alert eyes had noticed the various quaint characters that came and went into the other studios in the building on the Thames. For the most part they lived alone, each pursuing his craft in his own way.

"Do you know," she said to Charlotte Manor, who at that moment was helping herself to a second cup of fragrant coffee from Nan's percolator that stood always on the wicker tea cart. "This rationing business is the limit. All these poor artists who live alone, like me, can hardly get up a decent meal more than once a week. About twelve ounces of meat for a good husky person is not enough to stretch over seven days. I honestly think some of these men get their weekly rations and eat it all up in one meal and go without the other six days."

"It's had enough to get a meal for two with such a tiny bit of joint," added

"Which will go beautifully through seven days if judiciously carved, and with fish to break the monotony," put in Nan. "Whoever can cut the thinnest slices of meat to look like big ones will be the official carver."

So the sugar and butter, bacon and meat ration cards were all handed over to Nan. Fortunately they, one and all, had taken out their cards with the nearest grocer and butcher, so that the trouble of various stores was done away with.

Perhaps it was because Nan was American and one of Britain's allies, or perhaps it was because she chatted with her trades people and asked about their babies and what they fed them and told them about America and the great army in khaki over there—anyway, whatever the reason, Nan always found the best of joints, the finest of bacon and the best English butter for the artists. She was a splendid buyer.

Their first family dinner was a great success. There had not been so pleasant an evening in Chelsea building since the last raid and there was no less excitement. On that night, arrayed in various quaint gowns, they put on, they had met in the big attic where a splendid view of the air fight was possible, and when the raiders were driven off and the "all-clear" signal had sounded, Nan had invited them all into her studio for a cup of coffee and apple pie. It was two o'clock in the morning, but that was a small matter to studio life.

Conversation ran high and deep at that dinner table. Brains long used to sparkling thoughts, vivid bits of grim war and the wonderful inspiring exchange of art talk tripped about the table and made everybody bless Nan for her big idea. The cooking was a tremendous success and created much comment. It would seem from the abundant table that war was a thing of the past. Nan had cooked everything with the help of the girl artist. The caretaker's little girl was given four shillings a week to clear up and wash dishes. Altogether the arrangement was splendid.

Bobby Druce brought up his violin to Nan's studio, where they all trailed for coffee in the famous percolator. Helen McLean's music-mad fingers plucked up and down the keyboard for her big idea. The cooking was a tremendous success and created much comment. It would seem from the abundant table that war was a thing of the past. Nan had cooked everything with the help of the girl artist. The caretaker's little girl was given four shillings a week to clear up and wash dishes. Altogether the arrangement was splendid.

Nan did nothing but make coffee and look perfectly charming while she made every one comfortable with a cushion here and a footstool there, and many a soul hunger radiating from her as she moved about.

Bobby Druce, but recently back from the tragedy of war and with still painful wounds, drank in her charm and wondered why he had not found her before.

A little wedge of moon filtered across the old Thames. Bobby was studying slowly in Nan's hammock and drinking in the odor of the sweet peas and pansies that she had planted in long boxes around her balcony. His long white fingers were caressing his violin and he wished it were Nan's hair they were touching. Bobby knew with artistic suddenness that Nan was some one whom he had been on the verge of looking for now that he was home from the war.

And Nan, because she was Nan Moore, and seemed always to know just what her friends were wanting most, met his eyes fixed upon her and it needed not their silent appeal to make her go over to the slowly swinging hammock and embrace her lovely, happy self beside Bobby.

He sighed so contentedly that Nan thought the dim wedge of moon did not show him the dainty color in her cheeks.

"Rations aren't so bad when they are handled properly, are they?" "I don't think I could have lived—had we not been rationed," Bobby Druce told her.

Fifty Tons of Snails a Day.
In France, where there is a big demand for snails—the daily consumption in Paris alone reached 50 tons before the war—small farms yield a handsome profit. As many as 500,000 "first quality" snails, the price of which in normal times averages about $2 a thousand, can be reared on an acre of land.

They need only to be fed once a day, preferably in the evening, and though extremely voracious, are by no means fastidious. After a fall of rain, which seems to sharpen their appetite, a bed of 100,000 snails will soon demolish a barrow-load of cabbages. They are fed not only on green stuffs, but on wine dregs or bran soaked in wine, a diet which is supposed to impart a special flavor.

Three Hundred Dinners Wanted.
Meals for 300 people were prepared at Portland, Me., recently, but no guests appeared. It appears that a little black dog who acts as messenger. It delivers telegrams and messages and the like to its master. The other morning it came rushing into the office of the owner, who conducts the restaurant, and on opening the envelope it was found that the message was for meals for three hundred people. There was much haste to get ready for the large number of people. When the evening train came in no diners appeared. An investigation disclosed that the dog had opened the desk and from one of the pigeon holes extracted an old telegram.

Motor Motto.
"Your whole family quarrels with you for not keeping your auto repaired."
"Yes," replied Mr. Chargina. "Running this car is a case of work or fight."

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles."

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Strange Mixup of Names That Caused Some Misunderstanding in Talk Over the Telephone.

It is necessary to preface this little story with the assertion that it was not created by a punster, but that it actually happened, reports the Indianapolis News.

In the purchasing agent's office of one of the largest, if not the largest, corporations in Marion county, there was a clerk named Shaw and a stenographer named Smart.

The wife of the purchasing agent called over the telephone one day and asked for her husband.
"He has just stepped out," replied Miss Smart, who answered the phone.
"Oh, please," exclaimed the purchasing agent's wife.
Misunderstanding, the stenographer replied, "Why, he's not here, either."
"Oh, you're smart," commented the purchasing agent's wife.
"Yes, that's my name," replied the stenographer.
And further the affiant saith not.

The Proof.
"Tush!" said Dubbs contemptuously. "A woman never knows what she wants!"
"That's true enough," said Mrs. Dubbs. "I wanted you once, but if I'd known you—"

The pause then ensued was so chilly that the mercury in the thermometer on the wall broke through the glass and fell to the oor with a dull, sickening splash.

Homemade Paste.
Teachers and others who use much paste will appreciate a recipe for making it at home. Stir into a cup of flour enough cold water to make it of a creamy consistency. Pour over this four cups of boiling water, stirring all the time, and cook five minutes. To this add one teaspoonful of powdered alum, pour into a bowl and beat till cold. Then add one teaspoonful of carbolic acid and one teaspoonful of more of oil of clove or wintergreen. Pour into glasses or jars and cover with paraffin. This will keep indefinitely.

Ivory Photograph Needles.
The photograph stylus of vegetable ivory has a decided advantage over the old wooden needle, the usefulness of which is finished when it has played one record. The ivory point will stand the wear of six records, when the old wooden needle has been filed over the bevel and can be used on six more. The vegetable ivory is produced by a Central and South American growth, the phytelephas palm, which produces large clusters of seeds.

Before Day of Chronometer.
Longitude baffled all navigators until the chronometer came into use in 1735. The ancients and later navigators, including all the great discoverers, could find their latitude by observations of the sun's height, but they could determine their longitude only by "dead reckoning," or estimating their ship's progress from day to day. This system was uncertain and caused a great many shipwrecks.

Lucid English.
A recent advertisement contains the following: "If the gentleman who keeps the boot shop with the red head will return the umbrella of a young lady with whalebone ribs and an iron handle to the slate-roofed grocer's shop he will hear of something to his advantage, as the same is the gift of a deceased mother now no more with the name engraved upon it."

Road's Thick Ice Foundation.
At one point of a road recently constructed in Alaska, there is a solid ice foundation. At the surface there is a two-foot layer of moss and tundra, but previous mining operations at this point proved that there is a forty-foot bed of clear ice and six feet of gravel between the surface layer and bed rock.

Now in the Dodo Class.
Of the beasts familiar to us in our youth too, at least, have become extinct. One was the "consecrated cross-eyed bear" we used to sing about in Sunday school; the other that creature of wonderful speed and endurance, the "equator," or "menagerie lion that ran around the earth."—Boston Transcript.

HULLONIANS' HAPPY HOURS

Town meeting on Saturday night bids fair to be an interesting event. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lucas and son, Howard, will remain at Allerton all winter. Mrs. Lucas' sister, Mrs. Norin and daughter Edith will remain with them. Little Miss Edith is very entertaining, singing and reciting with much ability. A good bit of excitement prevailed in town when the searchlights were played all about, looking for those escaped prisoners.

Miss Vivian Mitchell has taken residence in Boston for the remainder of the winter.

Miss Helen Hanson, who has taken a position at the Minot Market, Cohasset, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. John Hastings, recently.

Ladies from Hull are invited to join the East Wind shopping expedition to Rockland, which begins next Saturday, Nov. 30.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorneill and family of interesting children have moved to Ashmont for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudderham and family will move to Allerton for the winter. They will close their summer home in Norwell about December 1st. Mr. Rudderham will remodel his house at Allerton. Their children have been attending the school here, making the trip by auto. Little Martha Rudderham and the boys visited the entertaining zoo at Franklin Park recently.

I have been told that I made a mistake, and that the amount raised in United War Work drive was $15,000.

Many family gatherings on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Robert Bryant entertained Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ker and family, Mrs. Sirovich and Warren Nixon, Mr. Jenkins and daughter Grace at Thanksgiving dinner.

Thanksgiving services in the M. E. Church on Thursday evening were well attended. Rev. Kingston preached a splendid sermon. It was eminently fitting that services should be held, there is much to be thankful for.

Mrs. Louis Galiano has received word from boys "over there" that her son Leon was severely wounded in the leg and has been in the hospital, but is now able to be up and around. Leon has not written of his injury.

Chester Waterhouse has received a letter from Corp. "Jack" Kowles, in which Jack speaks in warm praise of Sgt. "Doug" Ross, his modesty and bravery and says "Doug has grown tall and stout and is a fine looking chap."

It has been said that "Jack" himself has been in the hospital and has not written all about himself, so we must say something about his modesty.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ross and family are receiving a cablegram from their son Sgt. Douglas Ross assuring them that at the close of hostilities he was well and happy.

Mrs. Mark Damon had a letter from her husband "over there." All have been anxious to hear the news of the last few weeks before hostilities ceased.

Mrs. John received a letter from her husband stating that he is well.

Mr. John D. Young of Kennerly of the Covington was in France the last time heard from. He is "up for" first class freeman.

Little Grace Shirley Cushing, who came to gladden the hearts of her parents in October, is growing rapidly. Just now she with her parents are residing at her grandma's, Mrs. Grace Pettit.

Mrs. Cora Austin has received a letter from her son, Sgt. Daniel Reed Austin "over there" that he is well. It will be remembered that Daniel spent many summers here, the guest of his aunt, Miss Hattie Reed.

Mr. Andrew Pope has so far recovered from his illness as to be out and take a short walk.

Just now the one absorbing topic of talk is the celebration in honor of "the boys."

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell has recovered from her illness and is able to be about the house a little every day.

Mrs. Libbie T. Knight has received word that her son Francis has arrived safely over seas.

We feel that mention should be made of Stanton G. Knight, a high school boy, who raised two pigs this year, one weighing 300 pounds and the other 260. As he collected garbage for them, the cost was nothing except what the pigs cost in the first place. Stanton kept the pen clean so that there was no odor. He should have a prize.

Miss Kitty Knight is expected home for a short vacation.

Mrs. M. P. Hite who has been visiting Captain Hite's relatives in Ohio has returned to her home in Delaware.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE

The coming of Ethel Barrymore in the course of a theatrical season is always an event of far more than ordinary interest to playgoers. The announcement, therefore, that this delightful player's engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre has been extended to December 14 is a very welcome one.

The company surrounding Miss Barrymore is a most distinguished one, including as it does, Eva Le Gallienne, Antoinette Hanson, Anita Rothe, Cecilia Radcliffe, Mary Balfour, William Boyd, Edward Emery, Harry Plummer, Albert Gran, Ben Johnston, T. Wigney Percival, C. Maclean Savage, John M. Troughton and P. C. Butler. The comedy, needless to say, has been produced with all the good taste characteristic of Charles Frohman presentations. Her comedy is "The Off Chance," and its author R. C. Carton, so happily recalled for "Lord and Lady Algy," "Wheels within Wheels" and "Liberty Hall," all of which, with others from the same gifted pen, have been agreeably revealed in Boston in seasons past. Her coming engagement marks Miss Barrymore's first visit to Boston in two years.

It is indeed a happy role with which Mr. Carton has fitted Miss Barrymore in "The Off Chance." She appears as Lady Cardonnell, an English woman just verging upon a most attractive middle age, divorced some years ago, but who now happily remarried, turns up unexpectedly to help over a marital difficulty her young daughter, whom she has not seen since she was a baby.

The young Duke of Burchester, the daughter's husband and a most likable though sportive chap, is about to run off to Vienna with a famous, or notorious dancer, Lady Cardonnell is as unknown to her son-in-law as to her daughter, but, unidentified, she proceeds to smooth out the situation. She is by no means the mother-in-law of tradition in appearance or manner, and her methods in meeting the difficulty are not only extremely amusing, but amazingly unusual. Her efforts, however, meet with enormous success, and until all is well does the sportive young Duke of Burchester discover that the charming woman who has aided him and reinstated him in the favor of his pretty young wife is his own mother-in-law.

As Lady Cardonnell, Miss Barrymore has a delightful and ample opportunity for the display of the exquisite sense of humor and deft comedy, so beloved by the Barrymore following, together with moments of more serious import.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"It Pays to Advertise," one of the most successful of George Colman's many successful productions, will be given by the Castle Square Stock Company next week. It is the work of Roy Cooper Mergue, whose name is celebrated as the maker of a number of popular plays. It is a farce from beginning to end, one of the best of that type of play which is made for laughing purposes.

It tells the story of a young firm of business contractors who venture into the game of fortune-making, and their fortunes and misfortunes are narrated with a continuous sparkling vivacity. It is moreover a thoroughly American play, so full of youth and humanity, so full of common sense in the midst of its foolishness that it sets a new pace for farce-making. And it is also a clean and wholesome play, with an abundance of genuine humor.

The scene of "It Pays to Advertise" is the household of a famous Soap King, an eminent manufacturer of that necessary commodity is called. He has an idle son, and there is therefore no little sentiment mingled with his humor and the customary amount of love-making. The leading roles will be acted at the Castle Square by Ann MacDonald and Dudley Ayres, and other important characters will be in the capable hands of Betty Banicoot, Blanche Frederic, Dorothy Tierney, Mark Kent, Joseph Sweeney and Aubrey Bosworth.

COPELY THEATRE.

The popularity of "Hindle Wakes" as acted by the Henry Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre has been so great that it will be continued for a third week beginning next Monday. It is a three-act drama of stirring events that take place among the people of an English factory town. Its author is Stanley Leighton, one of the famous Manchester school of English dramatists who in recent years have made valuable contributions to the English drama, and whose work has become widely known in this country.

In "Hindle Wakes" is recounted the story, with mingled scenes of emotion and comedy, of a Bank Holiday weekend. The heroine is a weaver-lad who is employed in the mill that gives a living to the inhabitants of the town. She falls in love out of her station in life with the son of a wealthy mill-owner. Contrary to the usual custom in such cases, the father of her lover insists upon his son's marrying her, and still more unconventional is the refusal of the father to be satisfied with the girl at the last moment. For she realizes the lifetime of unhappiness that will come to her with the wholly undesirable husband he bids fair to be.

At the Copley Theatre "Hindle Wakes" is staged under Henry Jewett's personal direction. The cast includes eight people and calls upon the artistic skill of Phyllis Reith, Viola Roach, Jessie Newcombe, E. E. Clive, Noel Leslie, H. Conway Wright, and Fred W. Permain. Lord Lumsden's own act comedy, "The Lost Silk Hat," is acted as a curtain raiser.

CAPPY RICKS.

Those who read Peter B. Kyne's popular series of "Cappy Ricks" stories that were appearing recently in the Saturday Evening Post will well understand what wonderful fun-making opportunities they offered Edward E. Rose in his dramatization of "Cappy Ricks," which Oliver Morosco will offer for a limited engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, beginning next Monday night (December 2). To those who did not read "Cappy Ricks" there is in store a genuine laughing treat, for no more amusing set of characters, incidents and situations have found their way to the pages of fiction and been brought to life on the stage than those created by Mr. Kyne. "Cappy Ricks" is the story of the San Francisco waterfront, and has to do principally with the business and domestic difficulties of Alden P. Ricks, called "Cappy" by his friends. Being a self-made man who has found his way from a deck-hand to the President of the Blue Star Navigation Company, old Ricks, at the beginning of the story, is what might be termed a "hard-boiled egg." He is a little Napoleon of his company and is not in the habit of being crossed, but in Matt Peasley, one of his employees, he finally meets his "Waterloo" in the game of business, while young Peasley, not content with beating Cappy at his own game, incidentally steals his daughter in the water, with other assets of one of distinct characterizations, and Mr. Morosco has taken great care in selecting the players. For the title role of "Cappy Ricks" he has been fortunate in securing Charles Able, one of the best known character actors on the American stage, while he has surrounded him with such well-known players as Robert Kelly, who will be seen in the important role of "Matt Peasley," Marion Oakley, who has the altogether delightful role of "Florence Ricks," Percival Moore, who will be seen as John Skinner, Cappy's general manager; Lottie Alter, splendidly cast as "Aunt Lucy Bartlett," together with Helen Stewart, Elizabeth Parks, Norval Keedwell, Philip Lord, Thomas Shearer, Bert Wood, Elmer Ballard, and others of equal prominence and worth in the remaining roles. The engagement of "Cappy Ricks" at the Plymouth will be for three weeks only, owing to a previous contract signed for the opening of Lombardi, Ltd., at this house on Monday, December 23rd.

The Walk-in-the-Water.
The first steamer, we believe, that was ever operated on Lake Erie was named the Walk-in-the-Water, and was built just 100 years ago, near Black Rock and Buffalo. On her first trip to Detroit the Walk-in-the-Water stopped at Cleveland, where a grand reception was given to her officers and crew and a series of feasts was held to commemorate the awe-inspiring event.—Emergency Fleet News.

Use of Oxalic Acid.
In using oxalic acid to remove any ink stains always follow with a few drops of javelle water, which counteracts and neutralizes the oxalic acid. Then rinse with boiling water to remove both of these chemicals so that the fiber will remain untouched.

Marble Caves of Oregon.
Amid the wilds of southwestern Oregon, almost unknown to the world at large, is situated a series of underground chambers and passages remarkable for their size and for the beauty and unusual character of their decorations, says F. E. Tuck in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Within the last few years they have been made a national monument and are now known as the Marble Caves of Oregon.

Symptoms of Death.
The usual procedure in warfare to determine whether death has occurred is to inject fluorocaine, according to the method of Dr. S. Icard of Marseilles. In the living eye it will take a vivid green color, as though an emerald had been set in the socket. If no coloration is observed within an hour or two after injection, it may be stated positively that the person is dead.

Saline Plants.
Saline plants are plants such as saltworts, sea pursues, grasswack, sea-kale and asparagus, which grow on the seashore, or by the side of salt lakes, or in the beds of lakes which have dried up. They are rich in saline constituents, and when burnt their ashes were formerly used in the production of barilla, an impure carbonate of soda. This used to be employed in the manufacture of soap, glass and other products.

Some Famous Cats.
Sonthey declared that a house was not complete unless it contained a child rising three and a cat rising six weeks. He wrote "The Chronicle History of the Catery of Cat's Eden" for his numerous progeny, and among the famous cats of Great Hall, Keswick, were those named Lord Nelson, Bona Marietta, Pope Joan, Othello the Moor (as black as coal), Pulcheria and Mme. Blandin.

A "Call."
"What have you got?" asked the parson of the chauffeur. "I have his card," he replied. "On reir," replied the chauffeur, beckoning to the eopling couple to come forward.—Boston Transcript.
